A Cordial Meeting In Russia

Bush, Putin keep discord behind the scenes at talks

MOSCOW | Despite contentions over Moscow's commitment to democracy, President Bush thanked Russia's Vladimir Putin on Sunday for help on Iran and the Middle East and said "there's a lot we can do together."

The two leaders put an upbeat cast on talks at Putin's dacha at a walled compound 25 miles west of Moscow. The Russian leader even let Bush drive his white Volga sedan around a driveway before heading to dinner with their wives.

The two leaders ignored reporters' questions and kept their real discussions private, so there was no repeat of the contentious debate that flared publicly at a February news conference when they disagreed about Moscow's quashing of dissent and exertion of control in the country.

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, who briefed reporters on the talks, said Bush and Putin found wide agreement on the Middle East, support for Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas and a joint determination to fight terrorism.

Rice said the two leaders also discussed a recent speech by Putin in which he talked about internal reforms in Russia and said the demise of the Soviet Union was "the greatest geopolitical catastrophe of the century."

"For the two presidents, there are no forbidden topics," Lavrov said. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

An 11-year-old boy was arrested Wednesday for carrying 10 nails in his pocket at a Rock Hill, S.C., middle school. Under state law, anything that can be used as a weapon on school grounds can be unlawful, the assistant principal said. The boy offered varying excuses: The nails were left over from a project; they were for self defense because a suspicious man was seen in his neighborhood; he needed them for a Boy Scout outing.

His father called the charge "ridiculous": "Is a pencil a weapon? Is a pen a weapon? Is a paperclip a weapon?" (AP)

Bolton Vote to Be Down Party Line

Lugar expects Senate panel to OK U.N. pick if action isn't delayed

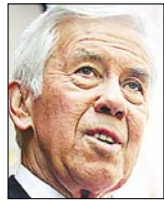

WASHINGTON | The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Sunday he expected John R. Bolton, the contentious nominee to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, to win a party-line vote in the committee this week.

"Republicans, I suspect, will vote in favor of John Bolton; Democrats, I suspect, will vote unanimously against him," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said on CBS' "Face the Nation." That would send Bolton's nomination to the full Senate on a 10-8 margin when the GOP-led committee meets Thursday.

Lugar said he thought the vote, delayed since mid-April, would come off as scheduled. But he acknowledged that Democrats who want to get more information about Bolton have many procedural ways to stall the vote.

Four committee Republicans supported a postponement of that

Lugar

April vote in order to review fresh allegations against Bolton. While none has indicated plans to oppose Bolton, it would take only one Republican to side with the committee's eight Democrats to create a tie vote — jeopardizing the nomination.

The top Democrat on the committee is still awaiting documents and records about Bolton that he requested from the State Department.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., raised the possibility of trying to delay the committee vote if he does not get the material. SIOBHAN MCDONOUGH (AP)

Detroit Considers Tax on Big Macs

Hungry for revenue, city looks to add new charge for fast food

DETROIT | Would you like fries with that? Either way, the Detroit city treasury would like a bite.

voters to approve a 2 percent fast-food tax — on top of the 6 percent state sales tax on restaurant meals. The mayor says consumers will barely notice the extra cents at the cash register, but critics say the tax would unfairly burden the poor and hamper economic development.

Other cities and states have special taxes on prepared food, and some have tried "snack taxes."

But if approved, the Detroit tax would be the country's first to target fast-food outlets, the National Restaurant Association said. The tax would apply to anything sold at a fast-food restaurant — even salads. SARAH KARUSH (AP)

White-Collar Jobs Hard to Organize

Efforts to unionize academics, high-tech workers falling short

NEW HAVEN, CONN. | Union organizers at Yale University know it's hard to generate sympathy for Ivy League graduate students who are paid up to $25,000 a year to teach.

It's the same story in Washington, where a union is courting Microsoft employees, and in New York, where organizers are trying to drum up support at IBM.

With American manufacturing jobs disappearing, many union leaders say they must organize high-tech workers and academics to survive. But organizers are finding that to rally a white-collar work force, they can't follow the 20th-century story line pitting workers against businessmen and their money.

Today's union drives require organizers to change the way the public views white-collar workers and how the employees view themselves.

Many people see unions as something that truck drivers need, but software engineers do not. Increasingly, union leaders find that workers feel that way, too.

Yale graduate teaching assistants rally in favor of forming a union in April. BOB CHILDS/AP

"The modern white-collar work force in America brings a tremendous amount of skepticism when it comes to organized labor, and it's an obstacle we face every day," said Marcus Courtney of the Washington Alliance of Technology Workers.

At Yale, organizers face a battle to win recognition. The National Labor Relations Board ruled last year that teaching assistants at private colleges are not workers and cannot form a union. The only way to win recognition would be for administrators to voluntarily grant it, something they have refused to do. MATT APUZZO (AP)

Astronomers Debate How to Define a Planet

BALTIMORE | Astronomy buffs can expect to hear about more and more objects being discovered orbiting stars, and more debate about whether they are planets, astronomers said at a conference on so-called extra-solar planets.

Part of the problem is too little is known about whether our solar system, and the planets it contains, is typical or unusual, astronomers said at the conference last week.

Some planets, like Jupiter, are composed mostly of gas. Stars also are gaseous, leading to confusion at times whether an object is a planet or a star.

The issue of what is a planet has been at the forefront of astronomy in recent weeks.

Scientists reported last month that new images taken of an object five times the mass of Jupiter confirm that it is a giant planet. The team said it marked the first time a planet outside of our solar system had been directly observed, a first that has been claimed before. (AP)

Amid Attacks, Iraq Fills Out Cabinet

7 U.S. servicemembers die in attacks across country over weekend

BAGHDAD | Insurgent violence killed seven U.S. servicemembers in Iraq over the weekend even as the Shiite-dominated parliament reached out Sunday to Sunni Arabs, approving four more of them to serve as government ministers.

More than 300 people have been killed in a torrent of attacks since Iraq's Cabinet was sworn in April 28 with seven positions undecided.

Parliament approved all six of the nominees placed before it Sunday by Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari. But one of the four Sunnis, the man tapped as human rights minister, rejected the post on the grounds

Blair Urged To Resign After Vote

Critics in British PM's own party say he's too much of a liability

LONDON | Prime Minister Tony Blair should quit, former cabinet ministers from his own Labour Party said Sunday, blaming him for their sharply reduced parliamentary majority after the national election.

Former Health Secretary Frank Dobson and former Foreign Secretary Robin Cook suggested that Blair's unpopularity, largely over his support for the U.S.-led war in Iraq, cost Labour dearly.

"I don't think prime ministers can go on if a very substantial part of their own party thinks that it would be decent of them to resign," Dobson told the ITV channel.

Blair won an unprecedented third consecutive term in Thursday's election, but his party's majority was cut from 161 seats to 66 in the 646-seat House of Commons.

Former Foreign Secretary Robin Cook, who quit the Cabinet over Blair's support for the war in Iraq, urged Blair to consider stepping down. "The question Tony Blair should be reflecting on this weekend is ... whether now might be a better time to let a new leader in who could then achieve the unity we need," Cook told BBC TV.

Blair loyalists within the Cabinet dismissed the calls. (AP)

Tribal Leaders in Afghanistan Back U.S. Partnership

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Hundreds of tribal leaders backed President Hamid Karzai's plan for a "strategic partnership" with the U.S. on Sunday, a government spokesman said, a pact that could cement a long-term U.S. military presence.

More than 1,000 elders and officials from across Afghanistan met with Karzai in the presidential palace in Kabul on Sunday for consultations on the plan, spokesman Jawed Ludin said.

"People are, on the whole, very positive about this," Ludin said, adding that only one person had spoken against the plan. Ludin didn't describe the man's objections.

Karzai would likely talk about the plan, which Afghan officials say must cover economic and political links as well as military aid, in a meeting with President Bush in Washington later this month, Ludin said. (AP)

Opposition Denies Myanmar Bombings

YANGON, MYANMAR | Opposition groups on Sunday denied involvement in three explosions in Myanmar's capital that killed at least 11 people and wounded 162, the worst bombings in decades.

Myanmar's military junta blamed ethnic rebel groups, including the Karen National Union and a self-proclaimed government-in-exile called the National Coalition Government of the Union of Burma, or NCGUB, for the attacks. Myanmar was formerly known as Burma.

State television said "terrorists" trying to disrupt "stability and tranquility" were responsible for Saturday's bomb blasts at the Yangon Convention Center and two upscale City Mart supermarkets.

But the NCGUB and other opposition groups denied involvement.

Myanmar has been ruled by the military for more than four decades. The current regime took power in 1988 after crushing a pro-democracy uprising. The junta keeps tight control over the population and anti-government violence is rare. (AP)

A Continental Celebration of War's End

Europeans mark 60th anniversary of Nazi defeat in WWII

LONDON | Sixty years after the end of Europe's most devastating war, huge crowds joined street parties and attended services across the continent Sunday to mark the anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany.

President Bush paid tribute to American lives lost in the 1939-1945 conflict at a cemetery in the Netherlands.

"On this day, we celebrate the victory they won and we recommit ourselves to the great truth that they defended: that freedom is the birth-right of all of mankind," Bush said at Margraten, Europe's third-largest cemetery for America's war dead.

In Moscow, Russian veterans took part in a pomp-filled celebration, while the city prepared for further celebrations on Monday to be attended by dozens of foreign leaders, including Bush. Russia paid the heaviest price of any nation, losing

Georgian Capital Gets Makeover for Bush Visit

TBILISI, GEORGIA | President Bush's visit to Georgia is billed by the White House as a celebration of democracy's progress and is seen by many Georgians as putting some muscle behind the country's efforts to break out of Russia's influence.

Bush, who arrives Monday evening, will spend less than 24 hours here, but Georgians are determined to show him some of their reputation for lavish hospitality. Buildings have been splashed with bright paint, grit swept off sidewalks and giant posters erected welcoming Bush. Even Georgian state television's logo has been transformed into an intertwined U.S. and Georgian flag.

"This is good," said Jumbari Akhavadzi, 63. "Better than what we did for [ex-Soviet leader Leonid] Brezhnev."

IS THE AIR YOU BREATHE IN YOUR HOME MAKING YOU SICK?

Your duct system functions as the respiratory system of your home. When it becomes contaminated and congested, it should be cleaned so it can 'breathe' normally and efficiently.

If you answer YES to any of the following questions, it may be time to have your air duct system professionally cleaned.

- ✓ Does anyone in the house have allergies, asthma, or other respiratory problems?
- ✓ Does anyone in your family suffer from headaches, nasal congestion, or other sinus problems at night or in the morning?
- ✓ Is there a smoker in the house?
- ✓ Do you have dogs, cats or other pets?
- ✓ Do you notice "musty" or "stale" odors when the furnace or air conditioner runs?
- ✓ Do you notice dust on your furniture shortly after cleaning?
- ✓ Does it seem like there is not enough air flow coming from your vents?
- ✓ Is your furnace equipped only with a standard throw-away fiberglass filter?

Man Arrested in Woman's Beating

Suspect accused of brutal daylight attack on 83-year-old vendor

WASHINGTON | Police announced the arrest Sunday of a man wanted in connection with the brutal beating of an 83-year-old woman last week in Foggy Bottom.

James Aloysious Dorsey, 46, was taken into custody about 5:30 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of North Capitol Street and Quincy Place NW, said police spokesman Sgt. Joe Gentile.

Dorsey is accused of punching and kicking the street vendor, known as "Grandma," in a daylight robbery Tuesday as she returned to her apartment on 24th St. NW, near George Washington University.

"Today, on Mother's Day, the prayers of the community have been answered," said Cmdr. Robert J. Contee. "We've got our man."

Police said Dorsey has been charged with robbery and domestic assault in connection with another attack last week, and likely will be arraigned Monday.

The beating was caught on a security videotape at the Potomac Terrace Apartment building, where neighbors said the victim has lived for more than 30 years.

The black-and-white video shows a man punching the woman in the face and knocking her down. The man then goes through her clothes, taking money and other property.

The woman suffered injuries to her nose, eyes and head, but is recovering well, doctors said Friday.

Investigators said they were given Dorsey's name as a person of interest by street vendors who work near the Foggy Bottom Metro station. (AP)

Probe Into 2nd Fire Near U-Md.

COLLEGE PARK | Firefighters were trying to determine Sunday what sparked a weekend house fire near the University of Maryland.

A home on the 8900 block of Azalea Lane was heavily damaged when flames broke out at about 11 p.m. Saturday, authorities said. Investigators say the fire apparently began on a porch or wooden deck.

The two people that live there were not home at the time, said Prince George's County Fire and Emergency Medical Services spokesman Mark Brady.

The fire occurred after an April 30 blaze destroyed a house shared by six University of Maryland students in the 7500 block of Princeton Avenue. Michael Scrocca, 22, of Somerville, N.J., was killed. A 21 year-old man was injured after jumping from a window.

Officials ruled that fire an act of arson. There are no suspects. (AP)

Virginia Grape Production Up 3%

VIRGINIA | Virginia vintners can raise their wine glasses to 2004 grape production: The state's 250 vineyards produced more than 3,700 tons of commercial grapes last year, up nearly 3 percent.

Although production overall were up, mixed yields between wineries were reported. But if Mother Nature cooperates, 2005 could yield an even heftier harvest. "It's looking good so far," said David Sawyer of Fincastle Vineyard & Winery. "Cross your fingers." (AP)

Q SINCE YOU ASKED

Q With the nice weather approaching, I was hoping to ride my motorcycle to the new Largo station — but signs in the parking garage say they're prohibited. I asked several attendants where I could park and they were apparently clueless. Is there anywhere at the Largo station that I can leave my motorcycle?

A Not only is there parking for motorcycles in the Kiss and Ride lot, it's even free. Bikes are prohibited at other Metro garages and lots because the gates don't recognize their presence and function improperly, creating safety concerns, said Metro spokeswoman Lisa Farbstein.

To make up for that, bikes can be parked without charge in designated spots in all Kiss and Ride lots. The Kiss and Ride at the Largo station is off Harry S. Truman Drive; motorcycle parking is to the right. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

SUN KING: Phoenix Suns point guard Steve Nash in his first year with the team, was named the NBA's Most Valuable Player on Sunday. He edged the Miami Heat's Shaquille O'Neal by 34 points in the fourth-closest margin in the history of the vote.

Wizards Can't Stand Heat in Game 1

Washington reserves come up empty in a 105-86 loss to Miami

WIZARDS | They gave away a big lead, turned the ball over often, got nothing resembling dominance from either Shaquille O'Neal or Dwyane Wade, and kept sending the Washington Wizards to the foul line.

And still, the Miami Heat won with ease.

Wade overcame a tough start to score 20 points and O'Neal added 19 to lead five Miami players in double figures, and the Heat defeated Washington 105-86 Sunday in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference semifinal.

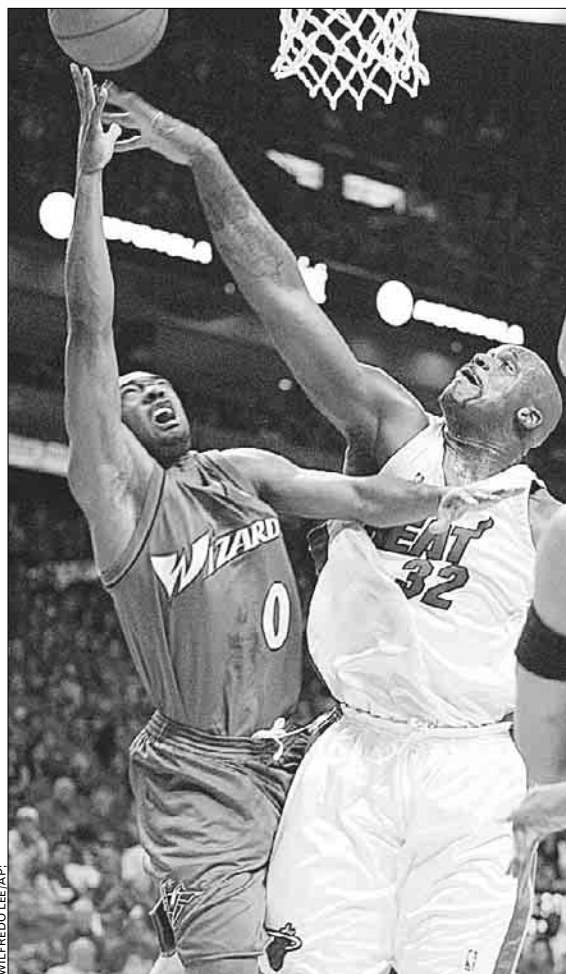

Keyon Dooling added 15 points, Eddie Jones had 12 and Damon Jones 10 for the Heat, who've won five straight playoff games for the first time in franchise history and are 5-0 against Washington this season.

Miami has also won 22 of 23 at home.

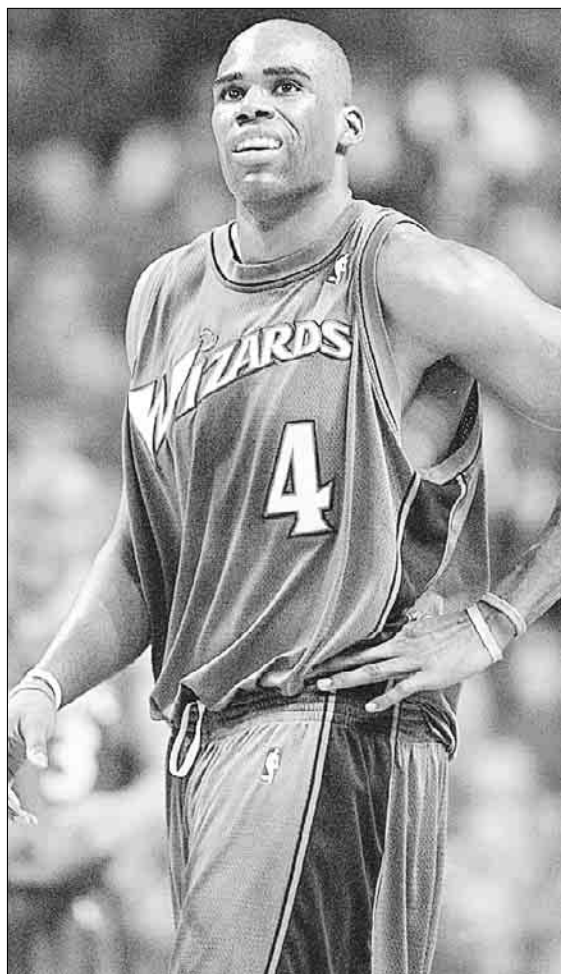

Gilbert Arenas had 25 points — on 8-for-21 shooting — for Washington, which has lost 12 of its last 14 in Miami.

Larry Hughes added 23 for the Wizards, Antawn Jamison had 13 and Jared Jeffries and Brendan Haywood added 10 apiece.

Game 2 is Tuesday night and is also in Miami.

While Washington's starters played Miami's first five pretty evenly, the Wizards got hardly any production from their bench — and that was the difference Sunday afternoon.

Miami's reserves outscored Washington's 36-5, led by Dooling — who was 6-for-9 off the bench for Miami; he's 20-for-26 from the floor in his last four playoff games.

"We gave them a run for their money, 36-5," Wizards coach Eddie Jordan said sarcastically. "We always have an 'X' factor. Today we had a 'Z' factor — zero."

Sixth Time Not Charm For Annika

Kerr ends Sorenstam's streak with victory at Michelob Ultra Open

WOMEN'S GOLF | Five tournaments in the making, Annika Sorenstam's winning streak ended with one miserable hole in Williamsburg, Va.

After climbing the leaderboard Sunday morning, Sorenstam's chances for a record sixth straight victory ended with a double-bogey on the third hole of the final round at the Michelob Ultra Open. She finished at 2-over 286, 10 strokes behind winner Cristie Kerr.

"I was ready to play, it just didn't happen, unfortunately," said Sorenstam, who shot a 3-over 74 in the final round.

Kerr was ecstatic with her victory, the fifth of her career but the first when Sorenstam was in the field.

After putting out to finish at 8-under 276, she tossed her ball into the water beside the green. "I need a beer," said Kerr. NANCY ARMOUR (AP)

Series Rekindles Memories of Brawl

NBA | Detroit and Indiana just want to play and talk basketball.

When most people think about the Pistons facing the Pacers, however, they remember the brawl and bomb scares marring their games earlier this season at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

"If it was just Indiana and Detroit, where you played four games during the regular season, like everybody else, it would've been fine," Detroit coach Larry Brown said. "I just hope that the players and fans realize that's over, let's learn from it and move on."

Artest's last NBA game was in the early season brawl in Auburn Hills, Mich.

Detroit will host Indiana in Game 1 of their Eastern Conference semifinals series Monday, nearly six months after a brawl between members of the Pacers and Pistons fans that led to several players being suspended — including Indiana Ron Artest for the season — and charges against 13 people. The game also comes six weeks after an Indiana-Detroit game was delayed 1 hour, 25 minutes because of a phoned threat of a bomb in Indiana's locker room.

"All eyes will be on this series because of what happened," Detroit's Antonio McDyess said. "We just have to go out there and hope nothing like that ever happens again." LARRY LAGE (AP)

WHO KNEW? Justine Henin-Hardenne captured the German Open on Sunday, stretching her winning streak to 17 matches with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Nadia Petrova. (AP)

Singh Capitalizes on Garcia's Collapse

GOLF | Vijay Singh took advantage of a record-tying collapse by Sergio Garcia and an untimely mistake by Jim Furyk, rallying from six shots behind with a 6-under 66 and winning the Wachovia Championship on the fourth hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday.

Garcia twice had the tournament in his hands — at the start of the day with a six-shot lead, then a one-shot lead with two holes to play.

But he pulled his tee shot on the par-3 17th into the water and scrambled for bogey, and missed a 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to fall into a playoff. It matched the largest final-round collapse in PGA Tour history, last accomplished by Greg Norman in the 1996 Masters. (AP)

Guillen: 'No Excuse' for Steroid Use

Nationals outfielder says language barrier not an issue for players

NATIONALS | Jose Guillen believes his fellow Latin American baseball players are making lousy excuses for testing positive for steroids. The Washington Nationals outfielder said despite challenging language barriers, Spanish-speaking players know exactly what they're putting in their bodies. "I don't buy that, that they didn't know what they were doing," Guillen told The Associated Press on Sunday. "They knew what they were doing. There's no excuse for them." More than half the players suspended for positive tests at both the major and minor league levels were born in Latin America, according to a review of their birth places by The AP. By comparison, about a quarter of players on opening-day major league rosters were born in Spanish-speaking countries. "They got caught," said Guillen, a former member of the Oakland Athletics who was born in San Cristobal, Dominican Republic. "Unfortunately, it's been Latin guys. But I don't buy into it [excuses]." Toronto catcher Greg Zaun lies in pain.

White Sox Continue Hot Play

BASEBALL | The Chicago White Sox haven't been this good since they were known as the Black Sox. Mark Buehrle won his fourth straight decision, and Jermaine Dye and Juan Uribe homered to lead the White Sox to their eighth straight victory, 5-4 over the Toronto Blue Jays on Sunday. The White Sox improved baseball's top record to 24-7, matching the 1919 club for the best start in franchise history. They have led in all 31 games this season, a major league record. Toronto's Gregg Zaun was carted off after he was kneed in the side of the head by Chicago second baseman Pedro Lopez while breaking up a double play in the bottom of the ninth inning. Zaun was down on the field for nearly 15 minutes and was fitted with an oxygen mask and a head and neck brace, but was awake and made some movements before being removed from the field. (AP)

Baltimore Upset Following Balk Call

ORIOLES | The Kansas City Royals blew a seven-run lead, then scored the tiebreaking run on an eighth-inning balk by Steve Kline and held on to beat the Baltimore Orioles 10-8 Sunday. Angel Berroa, Matt Stairs and Mike Sweeney homered for the Royals, who snapped a five-game skid. Kansas City had lost 14 of 16 and 17 of 20. The Orioles, who rallied from an 8-1 deficit before losing for only the third time in 14 games, got home runs from Melvin Mora, Javy Lopez and Geronimo Gil. With the score tied 8-8, Emil Brown opened the eighth with a single off Todd Williams (3-2). After a strikeout and an intentional walk, Kline came in and retired Joe McEwing before home plate umpire Bob Davidson called the left-hander for a balk. Brown hadn't crossed the plate before Kline started arguing the call. "He has the last say. What can I do?" Kline said. "I wasn't even set yet." (AP)

BIRD CALL: Freddie Mitchell, the loud-mouthed receiver who never produced much before being cut by the Eagles, told the Denver Post he's interested in joining the Redskins.

MONEY SHOT: A 50-1 pick, Giacomo, left, sprints toward his improbable victory at the Kentucky Derby on Saturday afternoon.

Skeptics Doubt Giacomo

Few expect Derby winner to claim Triple Crown

HORSE RACING | Giacomo's stunning Kentucky Derby victory at 50-1 odds hasn't scared the competition away. The colt can expect to see some of the same rivals and a few new ones in Baltimore in two weeks for the second leg of the Triple Crown.

Jockey Mike Smith was still smiling Sunday, a day after riding Giacomo to the second-biggest upset in Derby history. They defeated 72-1 long shot Closing Argument by a half-length.

"I got up this morning, said my prayers and I said, 'Is this really true? Did I really win it?'" he said.

If all goes well, Giacomo is expected to ship to Pimlico for the May 21 Preakness.

Asked if Giacomo could win that race, Smith said, "Without a doubt. I believe in him a lot."

Count Bobby Frankel among the skeptics. "You wouldn't think he's a Triple Crown horse. You got to like the horses who didn't fire in the Derby to win the Preakness," he said, referring to Bellamy Road and Aflect Alex.

D. Wayne Lukas, who trains Going Wild, said this year's Derby was "the most bizarre of all."

While giving Giacomo a chance of winning the Preakness, Lukas agreed with Frankel that Giacomo won't sweep the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

"You can chisel this in stone: There will not be a Triple Crown winner," he said. BETH HARRIS (AP)

MLB Investigates Bonds

BASEBALL | Major League Baseball is looking into Barry Bonds' relationships and activities, according to the New York Daily News.

Citing anonymous baseball sources, the newspaper reported in its Sunday editions that baseball security officials believe Bonds might be at risk of conviction over allegations of tax fraud.

yet to play this season as he recovers from knee surgeries.

The most recent Bonds controversy involves him using his own doctors and trainers to treat his injured right knee. Bonds' surgeon, Dr. Albert Ting, has been reprimanded twice by the California state medical board and is on probation for "unprofessional conduct," according to The Arizona Republic.

The Daily News reported that MLB officials aren't sure where their investigation will lead or what action they would take if they find Bonds has violated baseball's rules. (AP)

Biffle Wins With Timely Change

Newman's decision to not switch tires costs him Darlington race

AUTO RACING | Victory was most certainly in sight for Ryan Newman until strategy snatched it away at Darlington Raceway.

When a late caution forced teams to gamble on pit strategy, Newman made the wrong decision and stayed out on the track. The contenders behind him all stopped for new tires.

The result was Greg Biffle winning his third race of the season while Newman faded back to a fifth-place finish in Saturday night's race.

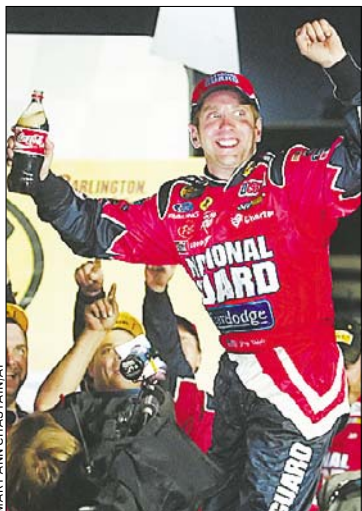

Newman had seized the lead from Biffle and was cruising to his first win of the season.

But with less than five laps to go, Mark Martin lost control of his car to bring out a caution.

It was decision time.

Biffle knew stopping for four fresh tires was his only option. But Newman wasn't so sure.

If he ducked off the track for tires,

there was no guarantee anyone else would. Newman would be shuffled back into the pack without enough time left to get back in front.

And he knew if he decided against taking tires, several cars would stop and hope the fresh Goodyears would propel them.

So Newman stayed out. Everyone else went in. He was a sitting duck.

The total revenue for online advertising spending last year, a record high. The growth — 33 percent from 2003 — was attributed to increased marketing through keyword ads that appear from Internet searches.

Spyware Better Beware

N.Y. attorney general mounts investigations of online pop-up ads

SPYWARE | Purveyors of spyware and adware and even the major companies that advertise in the surreptitious downloads have reason to fear New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer, the Democrat dubbed the "Sheriff of Wall Street."

Spitzer, a candidate for governor in 2006, is best known for his high-profile crusades against conflicts of interest in business, but hasn't ignored cyberspace. Last year, his office settled a spam lawsuit against OptInRealBig.com, and his year-old investigation of a "spam ring" continues.

"There has been a vacuum of enforcement to date," said Benjamin Edelman, a Harvard University spyware researcher. "There are lots of surprisingly big companies making serious money from these tactics. So Spitzer's intervention in users'

Ken Dreifach, Vanessa Ip and Justin Brookman of the New York Attorney General's office are investigating companies that use spyware and adware illegally.

defense is much appreciated and quite helpful," he said.

The problem has become epidemic as people spend more time online and spyware developers get more aggressive. Some repair shops blame spyware, particularly the subset of ad-delivery programs called adware, for more than half of computer troubles. One study found spyware on the computers of 80 percent of participants.

Although users still get such programs attached to games, screen-savers, file-sharing software and other freebies, often without their full knowledge, newer techniques need no user intervention whatsoever and rely on security flaws in operating systems and browsers.

In pursuing spyware, a civil lawsuit against Intermix Media earlier this month is likely just Spitzer's opening salvo. He accused the company of secretly installing software that delivers nuisance pop-up advertisements and can slow and crash personal computers.

Intermix denies fraud or use of spyware, saying many of the practices in dispute were established by previous leadership.

"Mr. Spitzer has put a match to this and it will be interesting to see just how many volleys take place," said David Moll of Webroot Software, an anti-spyware vendor.

Ed Brent's "SAGrader" analyzes essays and assigns a potential score.

Software to Keep Score

SOFTWARE | Student essays always had the same flaws. So University of Missouri-Columbia professor Ed Brent gave a computer the work; now students submit drafts to "SAGrader" software, which, in seconds, counts the points made, analyzes explanations of concepts and scores it.

Software now scores essays from high school to the GMAT, and, educators say, use is rising. Take Educational Testing Services' "e-Rater": 400,000 yearly GMAT-takers, 500,000 K-12 students, 46 foreign schools and districts, and 2,000 more teachers use it each month, ETS said. MATT SEDENSKY (AP)

Steal this Job Growing Up Greenhouse Manager

BRANDY JONES, 27

JOB: Greenhouse general manager at the Washington National Cathedral

SALARY: The average salary for a greenhouse supervisor in the Mid-Atlantic region was $43,314 in 2003, according to the American Association of Botanical Gardens and Arboreta (aabga.org)

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in plant breeding and genetics from Cornell University

WHAT SHE DOES: Jones runs the Cathedral's greenhouse, outdoor yards and plant-growing facility, making sure the bills are paid and the facility is packed with plant life to sell to the public. The bulk of what's on sale is brought in from wholesale nurseries. Each spring Jones orders plants — annuals and perennials as well as tropical plants, cacti, orchids and Venus flytraps, that fill the glass greenhouse — from various suppliers, after going on buying sprees through their fields. The greenhouse's specialties, however, are its herbs, veggies and "clones," which are made from cuttings of plants on the Cathedral grounds (figs and boxwood are popular). "People just seem to like to have something that was grown here, that they know the church produced," said Jones. She also builds arrangements to rent out for banquets and dinners and, last year, a wedding. And she lends a creative eye to filling customers' pots, gently steering them away from "your run-of-the-mill, boring plants."

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB? The greenhouse can get as hot as 110 degrees in August. And with hoisting garden statues and bags of soil, you're all but guaranteed to be dirty by the end of the day. But you get a rest in winter: The months of March through June move at "warp speed," said

Life at Work

AMY JOYCE's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. She chats every Tuesday at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

My office is non-smoking. The chief of staff, however, lights up in his office, which opens into my area. If he were a fellow grunt I might mention that we're supposed to go outside. But the big boss man? I'm not sure I'll be able to handle the itchy eyes and coughing.

Is there anyone over this guy you could ask to do something? Or could you ask to move desks? Barring that, you might just have to tell him you get sick around smoke and ask if there's any way he could join the others outside. One other alternative: a big, fat, loud air filter on your desk.

I need advice on deflecting questions about doctor's appointments (and nausea). I am pregnant, but I'm not telling my boss yet.

"Oh, you know. It'll resolve itself soon, it just takes a little time." Blow your boss off as much as possible. He or she will get the picture or a light bulb will go off.

Jones, followed by bursts of business selling pumpkins and corn in the fall and poinsettias at Christmas, before the pace goes "completely dead."

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: You'll likely need a bachelor's degree in a plant-related field, such as plant sciences or horticulture, or several years of experience if you want to climb the food chain at a greenhouse, said Jones. On the other hand, greenhouse technicians at the Cathedral might just have a strong interest in plants (volunteer positions are also available).

CAN'T WE ALL JUST GET ALONG? Lopez hopes "Monster-in-Law" with Jane Fonda will redeem her recently rocky film career.

The Good Girl

Jennifer Lopez gets some bruises (and help) from a legend

THERE ARE NO SMALL PARTS | Jennifer Lopez clipped Jane Fonda over the right eye with her ring, drawing blood. Fonda struck back and made Lopez's face swell like a balloon. No, these weren't two divas behaving badly at an L.A. hotspot.

Fonda and Lopez were shooting a scene in the new comedy, "Monster-in-Law," in which their characters slap each other silly.

Though they play antagonists in the film, the two actresses reportedly got along swimmingly off-camera. But in their efforts to make the slapping appear realistic, they took real swipes at each other. No stunt doubles. No stand-ins. "We needed bags of ice," Lopez said.

"There were seven real slaps, times 20 takes," said director Robert Luketic, who plans to compile the outtakes and include the "slap-aganza" on the DVD release.

But aside from a few bumps and bruises, Lopez and Fonda appear to have enjoyed working with each other.

Lopez, 35, admitted she was initially a little apprehensive about starring opposite a movie icon like Fonda, but quickly overcame her fear. "I couldn't be scared," she explained. "At some point I had to gain her respect, like the character does in the movie."

Fonda, 67, said she too was a little nervous about meeting Lopez, one of today's biggest stars. "When I was her age, I probably had three rings to my circus; Jennifer has five," Fonda said.

In the film, Lopez plays Charlie, a sweet-natured free spirit who thinks she's found Mr. Right (Michael Vartan). Unfortunately, his mother turns out to be a pathologically overprotective woman who will stop at nothing to keep her son to herself. But Charlie isn't going down without a fight.

After the broad comedy of "Monster-in-Law," Lopez is getting serious in her next few films. Up next is "An Unfinished Life," opening in September, in which Robert Redford plays her antagonistic father-in-law. (Is there a pattern emerging here?)

She is slated to star in "Bordertown," reuniting her with her "Selena" director, Gregory Nava. Lopez will play a journalist investigating a series of murderous attacks on mostly poor women in the blue-collar town of Juarez, Mexico. She is also planning to star in an update of the opera "Carmen."

"Hopefully I'll have some great classics along the way," she said. "We'll see." ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Ryan Adams' indie country grows up and gets its jam on

MUSIC | There are some Ryan Adams fans who believe his 2000 solo debut, "Heartbreaker," was his best work. But they might rethink that notion after listening to "Cold Roses" (Lost Highway).

The double-disc set shows

Fans expect great things from Adams; his new album delivers.

a new maturity in Adams. With "Cold Roses," Adams lets the music speak for itself. And the music doesn't just speak — it sings as beautifully as Adams does, from the desperate bittersweet pleading of "Sweet Illusion," as he sings, "Let me go, I'm only letting you down," on the upbeat, James Taylor-flavored "When Will You Come Back Home," and to the dreamy country twang of "Easy Plateau."

Adams' band, the Cardinals, sounds not unlike the Grateful Dead here. Cindy Cashdollar caresses the steel guitar with the same sensuality as Jerry Garcia showed back in the day. It seems that Adams, a self-proclaimed Deadhead, has found a band that suits this influence. Rachael Yamagata sings backup on several tracks, including the title track and the single "Let It Ride."

While his output may be a bit much for some — there are 18 tracks here, and two more albums are slated for this year — the fact that these songs are good old rocking tunes is undeniable, and there can never be a surplus of good music.

As Not Seen on TV

HBO takes some of its best original movies to the big screen

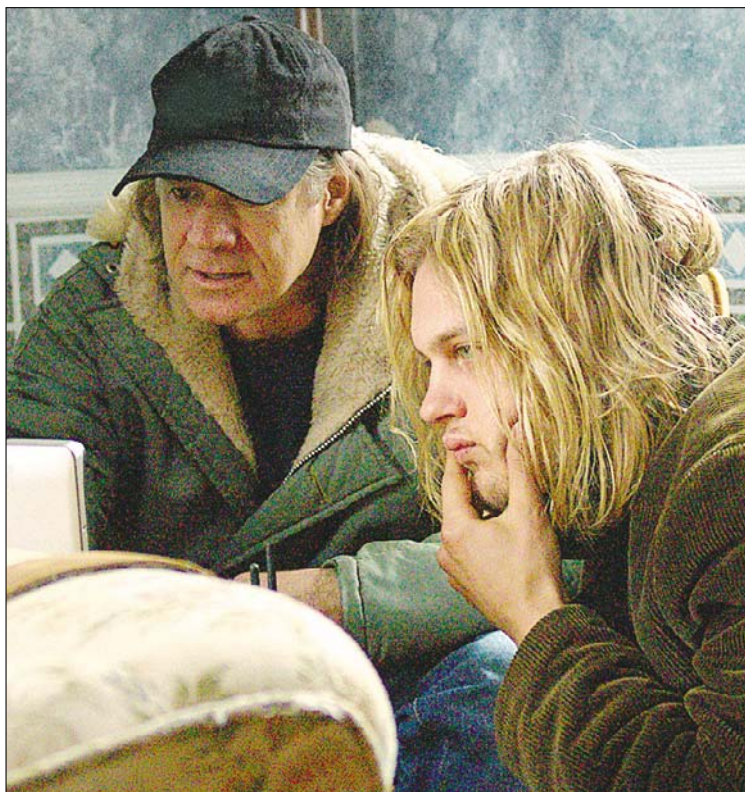

BRAND EXPANSION | The people at HBO Films have a rooting interest at the Cannes Film Festival this week. A film they bankrolled, Gus Van Sant's "Last Days," is among the 20 competing for the prestigious Palme d'Or.

The story based on Kurt Cobain's descent toward suicide will be in movie theaters this summer and probably won't be seen on HBO for at least a year.

By making movies for theaters, the premium cable channel is seeking to burnish its reputation and direct attention to projects that may otherwise be overlooked.

"I hope it's a way of saying to filmmakers that there are a multitude of ways you can work with HBO," said Colin Callender, president of HBO Films. "This furthers the notion that we're not constrained by traditional forms."

HBO first tried this approach in 2002 with "Real Women Have Curves," a movie about a Mexican-American woman's struggle to get a college education. It was made with an unknown cast and was likely to get lost in a year HBO had a full slate of films coming out.

HBO took the movie to the Sundance Film Festival. It won two audience awards, and Callender was approached by people who wanted to release it theatrically. The film ended up grossing $6 million after costing less than $4 million to make.

HBO Films has since gone to theaters first with "American Splendor," starring Paul Giamatti; Van Sant's "Elephant"; and "Maria Full of Grace," which earned Catalina Sandino Moreno a best actress Oscar nomination for her portrayal of a drug smuggler.

It has tried other ways to give its movies more attention and circulation. Earlier this year, HBO agreed to let PBS air three of its current events-oriented movies, including "Dirty War," a month after they appeared on the premium service. Rerun rights to the miniseries "Angels in America" were sold to Logo, the gay and lesbian-oriented network that is to debut next month.

Generally, HBO premieres about six to eight original movies a year. One or two go first to theaters, although that may be stepped up next year.

"We were and continue to be very conscious of our obligation to and unwritten contract with subscribers that we would provide them with exclusive and original movies," Callender said. DAVID BAUDER (AP)

The New Old Order

The seminal '80s synth band is still inspiring and rocking

INFLUENCE | Pioneering U.K. electro/rock outfit New Order broke an eight-year silence with the well-received 2001 set "Get Ready," but that didn't make the prospect of writing material for the follow-up any easier.

In fact, according to bassist Peter Hook, "we sat down with absolutely nothing. The funny thing is, after all these years of doing it and knowing you have the ability, it shouldn't really frighten you, but it's quite daunting."

From those humble beginnings came "Waiting for the Sirens' Call," released in April on Warner Bros. records.

Hook — who is joined in the band by vocalist/guitarist Bernard Sumner, drummer Stephen Morris and new guitarist Phil Cunningham — is the first to admit that the album simply updates New Order's classic sound with a modern production sensibility and a dash more guitar than would have been utilized in the '80s.

But at a time when bands like Franz Ferdinand, the Killers and Interpol are revealing huge sonic debts to New Order — and to its previous incarnation, Joy Division — "Sirens' Call" is a potent reminder of how artistically valid the group remains. That validity is underlined on "Jetstream," which features a vocal by Scissor Sisters' Ana Matronic.

The band's enduring influence was celebrated at February's NME Awards, where it was honored with the Godlike Genius trophy.

Hook is thrilled New Order is still making music that inspires its members, much less a new generation of listeners. "To me, the music has never evolved from Joy Division, because it feels the same," he said. "Every song feels like a challenge, and it's wonderful when you get to the end of it and you've pulled it off."

JONATHAN COHEN (BILLBOARD)

280: Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee's peak poundage. He lost 100 of those pounds and is flogging his weight-loss plan in a book: "Quit Digging Your Grave With a Knife and Fork."

MS NATIONAL MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS SOCIETY

great' ness (n.) - marked by outstanding achievement or importance.

We all aspire to it. For some it can take a lifetime. For others, it comes in an instant. For those who ride in the MS Bike Tour, greatness comes from putting aside the reasons why they can't ride to find the reasons why they can. Reasons that bring hope to the 400,000 people living with MS. This is why we ride.

What is greatness?
We invite you to find out for yourself. Come ride the MS Bike Tour on May 21 & 22, 2005.
To find out more, visit us at MSandYOU.org or call 202 296-5363.

Secrets and Spies

Yunjin Kim of ‘Lost’ finds her voice — as well as stateside fame

ISLAND BEAUTY | The ABC series “Lost” is rich with characters, and Yunjin Kim’s demure Sun has been one of the highlights. At first, Sun and her possessive husband, Jin-Soo (Daniel Dae Kim), spoke only Korean and isolated themselves. But then Sun revealed that she speaks English and proved that she possessed more inner strength than anyone, including her husband, had imagined. Kim, 31, grew up on Staten Island but has called Seoul, South Korea, home for the past eight years. She’s appeared in numerous miniseries and movies, including the hit Korean thriller “Shiri.”

NO WOMAN IS AN ISLAND: Kim’s character, Sun, has blossomed from a meek wife into one of the most compelling “Lost” survivors. She’s even the resident gardener.

Will all the secrets of the island be revealed on the finale?

I think the writers will give us something, but I think it will be another cliffhanger. For us it’s frustrating, too. We are just as much in the dark as the rest of the audience.

With Sun speaking English, you have a lot more dialogue.

Thank God everyone knows now. I can mingle with others. I can get involved in other people’s crises. There are some characters Sun has never even talked to!

At first the Asian community was very critical of Sun and Jin-Soo.

In the very beginning, we were sort of portrayed as a bad stereotype of a ... the subservient wife and domineering husband. But I kept saying you have to watch the characters because they will continue to grow. Every character on “Lost” is an archetype. Once they are in motion, they break away.

Did you leave New York for Korea because of a lack of decent roles?

No. Color-blind casting was in fashion, so I didn’t have too many problems getting roles onstage. Back in 1997 I got cast in a Korean miniseries. It was just a random thing. And it took off. It was crazy. If you can believe it, half of Korea was glued to the TV.

What was it about?

It was a very kind of trendy miniseries about a cosmetics company. I played this sassy woman. And then I got cast in “Shiri.”

Was your character in “Shiri” anything like Sun?

I was playing ... a North Korean spy who falls in love with her enemy. From then on I played every cool girl with a gun. My nickname in Korean is “Woman Warrior.”

THE UNDEAD FRANCHISE: Spike TV has ordered a pilot based on the "Blade" movies starring Wesley Snipes as the half-human, half-vampire hunter of bloodsuckers. A two-hour film based on the Marvel comic books will premiere early next year.

With This Bling ...

A couple in need get the gaudy wedding of their 'Extreme' dreams

NUPTIALS | Weddings are often associated with June, but TV sweeps come in May.

So look for tear-stained rose petals on "Extreme Makeover: Wedding Edition" (10 p.m., ABC). The "Extreme" team has only three days to whip up a dream ceremony for groom Kyle Garlett, 33, a four-time cancer survivor currently awaiting a heart transplant. He met his bride-to-be, Carrie Riordan, 29, when she was training for a charity run for the Leukemia-Lymphoma Society in 2002. Garlett's medical expenses put their wedding plans on hold until now.

ONCE IS NOT ENOUGH: Liza, a wedding veteran, entertains the happy couple.

Despite its spring schedule and California setting, the wedding spectacular will have a "Christmas in New York" theme, complete with a realistic recreation of the ice-skating rink at Rockefeller Center.

And it just keeps getting grander. Who is going to skate on that rink? Why, ice-skating champion Kristi Yamaguchi! The Kansas City Chiefs' Tony Gonzalez and celebrity choreographer Cris Judd also show up. And, because every "Christmas in New York" theme wedding spectacular needs a singer, they've invited Liza Minnelli. She's always good luck at weddings. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ACCOUNTING

NEWSROOM BUDGET ADMINISTRATOR

The Newsroom Budget Department is seeking a full-time Budget Administrator. The successful candidate will be well-organized, detailed-oriented, and will have the ability to multi-task and work effectively in a unit where new things pop up almost daily. A good sense of priority and tactfulness is a must, given that the Budget Department is responsible for approving employee reimbursement requests and vendor payments, and is the liaison to the Accounting Department. The ability to resolve problems is equally important. For this position, experience or an educational background in accounting or business management is required, in addition to intermediate-level Excel skills. Knowledge of Oracle, Access and People Soft is ideal.

The Budget Administrator will be the assistant to the Director of Budget and Finance. Duties are two-fold and will include but are not limited to:

Tracking/Analysis
Monthly tracking and analysis of expenditures versus budget; preparing, analyzing, and issuing 34 financial reports monthly; developing and improving budget monitoring processes; identifying and generating monthly/quarterly expenditure analysis reports; standardizing budget procedures within the newsroom; and preparing budget forecasting prior to fiscal budgeting process.

Administrative
Processing expense reports, bills, invoices, payment vouchers, and purchases; managing a position tracking database and the weekly newsroom employment reports; preparing the annual headcount budget and monthly budget report packets; processing month-end and year-end accruals; researching discrepancies related to expenses and payroll; conducting and coordinating department orientations; and other administrative duties such as copying, sorting mail, and providing back-up for the department's Administrative Assistant.

Interested applicants should send resumes to:

Healthcare Positions at Delmarva Foundation

Advancing the Promise of Better Health

We are seeking healthcare professionals to work on an exciting new quality improvement project, Doctor Office Quality - Information Technology in our downtown Washington, DC office, 2 blocks from the Farragut North subway station.

- The position as Quality Improvement Consultant requires a registered nurse or other health professional with a minimum of a Bachelor of Science degree. Experience in the physician office setting is essential; office manager skills are preferred. Skills necessary for this position include an analytical mind, clinical understanding, excellent oral and written communication skills, and superior organizational skills. Extensive travel is required within DC and MD.

- The position as Project Manager requires at least a bachelor's degree; Master's in Health Care Administration is preferred. Must have one to three years work experience in a professional environment. At least one year of direct project management experience is critical. Must be proficient with office systems and computers and have a working knowledge of Word, Excel and PowerPoint; familiarity with Access a plus.

Successful candidates will have excellent interpersonal, communication and organizational skills. Will be able to handle and prioritize multiple tasks, accurately process detailed oriented tasks, cope with and embrace change, risk and uncertainty; work in a small, fast moving and, at times, intense environment. Will be willing to work in teams, to learn new concepts, to pitch in as necessary at all task levels and to embrace and actively support the quality improvement culture.

The Delmarva Foundation is a highly successful and rapidly growing not-for-profit company with a passion for excellence and over 25 years of experience in health care. We offer you: excellent company paid benefits, including parking; flexible weekday hours with holidays off; interesting and challenging work; a stimulating work environment; and the chance to join a team in making a positive difference.

Visit us at www.dfmc.org. Affirming equal opportunity in principle and in practice, Delmarva is committed to developing a diverse workforce. For immediate consideration, please submit resume with salary requirements to:

Research

Science that crosses animals and humans is raising hopes, fears

On a farm about six miles outside Reno, Nev., Jason Chamberlain looks over a flock of about 50 smelly sheep, many of them possessing partially human livers, hearts, brains and other organs.

The University of Nevada-Reno researcher talks matter-of-factly about his plans to euthanize one of the pregnant sheep in a nearby lab. He can't wait to examine the effects of the human cells he had injected into the fetus' brain about two months ago.

"It's mice on a large scale," he says with a shrug.

As strange as his work may sound, it falls firmly within the new ethics guidelines the influential National Academies issued recently for stem cell research.

In fact, the Academies' report endorses research that co-mingles human and animal tissue as vital to ensuring that experimental drugs and new tissue replacement therapies are safe for people.

Doctors have transplanted pig valves into human hearts for years, and scientists have injected human cells into lab animals for even longer. But the biological co-mingling of animal and human is now evolving into even more exotic and unsettling mixes of species, evoking the Greek myth of the monstrous chimera, which was part lion, part goat and part serpent.

Particularly worrisome to some scientists are the nightmare scenar-

ORGAN DONORS: Sheep at the University of Nevada-Reno may someday produce livers suitable for transplant into humans.

Ewe & Me

ios that could arise from the mixing of brain cells: What if a human mind somehow got trapped inside a sheep's head?

In January, an informal ethics committee at Stanford University endorsed a proposal to create mice with brains nearly completely made of human brain cells. Stem cell scientist Irving Weissman said his experiment could provide unparalleled insight into how the human brain develops and how degenerative brain diseases like Parkinson's progress.

Weissman, who has already created mice with 1 percent human brain cells, said he has no immediately plans to make mostly human mouse brains, but wanted to get ethical clearance in any case.

Few human-animal hybrids are as advanced as the sheep created by another stem cell scientist, Esmail Zanjani, and his team at the University of Nevada-Reno.

They want to one day turn sheep into living factories for human organs and tissues and along the way create cutting-edge lab animals to more effectively test experimental drugs.

Zanjani is most optimistic about the sheep that grow partially human livers after human stem cells are injected into them while they are still in the womb.

Because the human liver regenerates, the research raises the possibility of transplanting partial organs into people with failing livers.

Drawing ethical boundaries that no research appears to have crossed yet, the Academies recommend a prohibition on mixing human stem cells with embryos from monkeys and other primates. But even that policy recommendation isn't tough enough for some researchers.

"The boundary is going to push further into larger animals," New York Medical College professor Stuart Newman said. "That's just asking for trouble." PAUL ELIAS (AP)

Are you Depressed?

Have you been diagnosed with Major Depressive Disorder or Depression?

Have you tried at least one prescription anti-depressant medication that didn't work for you?

If you are between 18 and 65 years of age, and have had a poor response to anti-depressant medications in the past, you may qualify to participate in a research study.

If so, you will receive investigational medication and study-related physical exams.

Paula and Corey

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to discuss the controversy over "American Idol" judge Paula Abdul | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Do you think they'll really fire Paula Abdul over these "revelations"? How come the president can do this with an intern and keep his job?

Because the intern was not up for a multimillion-dollar recording contract, silly. That one was too easy. Ask me a tough question. Oh, do I think they'll fire Paula Abdul? I think they'll play wait-and-see while conducting their own "investigation." Viewers have said in the past, at least ones who participated in focus groups, that they love, love, love Paula because she's so "nurturing."

Lisa, I have to disagree with you. While Corey clearly is pondscum, there was SOMETHING inappropriate going on between him and Paula. Those 100-minute phone calls did actually happen. Plus, it seems pretty clear that she didn't fully disclose to Fox the extent of the contact between her and Corey. I think she has to go.

I did not say I did not think there was something going on between Clark and Paula. (Yes, I know, double negative.) ... But I don't think that means she has to go. She just needs to go on Dr. Phil's show in prime time in the next sweep and get a little weepy and talk about how she was weak and we're all human. Then she can come back for another season.

Why does anyone even care? Why can't we go back to being entertained by entertainers. Reality TV is awful.

You may not have noticed, but the big story this season is the resurrection of the scripted TV show: "Desperate Housewives," "Lost," "Medium," "Grey's Anatomy," etc. Do not despair.

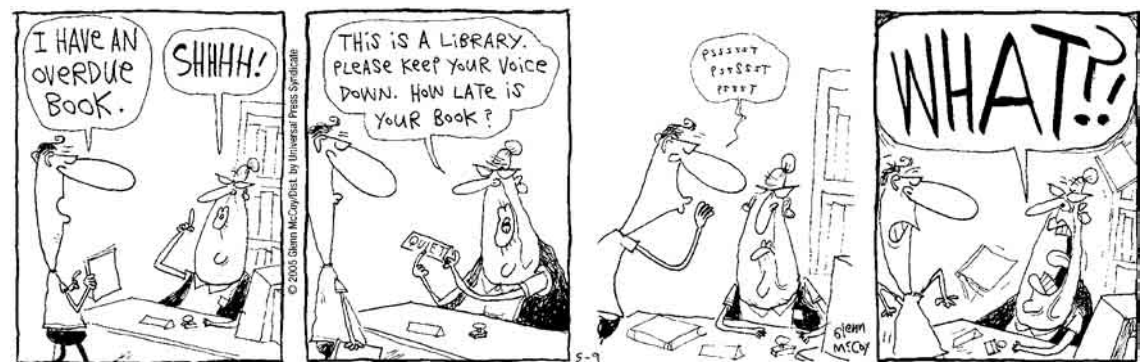

Why does the next "American Idol" have to be clean-cut? It's a talent competition. They're not running for student body president, people.

I think they should be extremely wholesome — a former Disney Mouseketeer. Like Britney Spears. Or Justin Timberlake. Or Christina Aguilera.

Jab at Jagr Was Unfair

IN DISCUSSING THE NATIONALS' injury woes ("Nationals Begin to Feel D.C.'s Pain," May 6), Matt Swenson disparaged Jaromir Jagr by saying, "Only here would Jaromir Jagr forget how to play hockey." I think this is an unfair assessment of both Jagr and the Washington Capitals.

During his brief stay in the city, Jagr tried to play team hockey — something for which he'd not been well known. But he was on a team that was unwilling to work. When you make a pass to a player's stick, you don't expect them to miss it, but that was what happened over and over again. For what these players are paid, this is inexcusable.

The Capitals have long been a team of great potential with no work ethic. At the end of that season, I would have fired everyone except Jaromir Jagr and Olie Kolzig.

VAMPIRES

Goth Teens Suddenly Find Christianity Sexy

Vampires are usually her passion, but ANNE RICE is getting biblical in her next book, due out in November. "Christ the Lord: Out of Egypt" is a fictionalized account of Jesus' early years "in his own words." Excerpts of a letter that will accompany review copies of the book are published in the new issue of Entertainment

Weekly. "For over 10 years I've wanted to do this book — Jesus in his own words," Rice writes. "In humility, I have attempted something transformative which we writers dare to call a miracle in the imperfect human idiom we possess. It's to bring Him here in the form of a story, and that story is Christ The Lord." (AP)

BENNIFER II

Yeah, Surprise

After months of agonizing rumormongering, E! is reporting that JENNIFER GARNER is definitely, irrefutably, publicist-no-comment-proof pregnant with BEN AFFLECK's baby, and little Bennifer III is due in November. How the pregnancy will affect Garner's schedule is unclear; "Alias" has been renewed for fall, and it will resume production in July, according to E! Online. There was no word on how "Alias" will deal with Garner's increase in girth, though the show has no shortage of large, mysterious, potentially belly-covering spy goodies. (EXPRESS)

STATUARY

The Animatronic Version Was Just Too Expensive

A life-sized bronze statue of JAMES BROWN was unveiled in Augusta, Ga., Friday for the singer's 72nd birthday. It was supposed to be presented last May, but the city postponed the ceremony because Brown was facing domestic violence charges for pushing and threatening his wife. At the ceremony, the REV. AL SHARPTON, Brown's former road manager, said the statue will stand as a reminder that everyone gets knocked down, but champions get back up. (AP)

'PARTY OF FIVE' Epilepsy Patients Want Matthew Fox Instead

NEVE CAMPBELL said a cousin with epilepsy inspired her to support an epilepsy "bill of rights" to draw attention to the disease and options for coping with it. "There is great misunderstanding about epilepsy, I think," she said. Campbell is in Showtime's "Reefer Madness." (AP)

Epilepsy patients would also accept Lacey Chabert, but not Scott Wolf.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't do favors with strings attached. If you're going to help, help — but don't look for any special meaning in the arrangement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make yourself available to those who wish to contact you. Correspondence is essential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have an eye for imitations, and you don't want to deal with anything but the real thing. Insist on honesty, sincerity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't hesitate to start provocative conversation when things get a little slow. It's up to you to add spice and variety to your own life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't make the mistake of being too bossy with those you love, for it will be misinterpreted and will backfire on you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Even the best intentions are sometimes not enough to save a misguided project. It's important to know when to pull the plug.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Don't be afraid of trusting an elder family member with a problem or dilemma you've had trouble talking about with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Though you'll want to be the center of attention, you won't want to do things that are familiar. Get out and about; explore.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The unusual, the extraordinary, the bizarre and the risky and dangerous will hold a special fascination for you throughout the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll be presented with a new scenario or a new plan that you simply can't pass up. It can prove an important, profitable turning point.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll want to cater to your mind, as well as your body. Indeed, this is a good day to work for a universal balance and harmony.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Now is no time to let your responsibilities slide; work hard to protect your image, reputation. Don't be late to parties, meetings.
